

Planning board denies Ainsworth Road project

Melody of bank notes

The Wilmington High School Band has been rehearsing for the Celebration of the Arts, a festival set to run from March 8 through the 16. The festival is planned to raise funds for the renovation of the Barrows Auditorium. The town has $99,000 on hand, but needs another $200,000 for the renovation project.

by Arlene Surprenant
After 10 months of frustration, discussion, and deliberation, the Wilmington Planning Board voted unanimously to disapprove a commercial subdivision off Ainsworth Road. The action came on Tuesday night amid cheers by neighbors who supported the decision.

Planners offered 11 reasons for turning down the proposal by landowner Robert Corey and Sunshine Investment Realty Trust. By law, if the owner is able to address each of the reasons or concerns listed, he can still go ahead with his plans, said Chairman Dave Clark.

Much of the reason for the disapproval centers around the fact that Ainsworth Road is partly in a residential zone. Table 1 of the zoning bylaws provides for only single-family dwellings and some governmental, institutional, and public service uses in this easterly area. However, because most of the land is zoned general industrial, Corey has no choice but to propose all commercial development on the site. This, say planners, is not in compliance with the zoning by-laws, which requires other uses in the residential zone. In addition, say planners, case law "prohibits the use of residentially zoned land for access to a less restrictive zoning district, such as the GI zone in this case." Other reasons for the board's decision include lack of information which would allow the Town Engineer to evaluate Corey's compliance; a plan to close a portion of Andover Street which could lead to safety problems for emergency vehicles; and lack of supporting documents for traffic mitigation at the intersection of Woburn Street and Route 62.

In addition to disapproving the project, the board also took action on six waiver requests. They denied waivers to reduce the width of Ainsworth Road from 42 to 32 feet; to do away with all sidewalks; and to exempt telephone, electrical, and fire alarm service from underground utilities.

Corey and his consultant Paul Lindholm now plan to review the board's decision and the reasons for the disapproval before deciding on what action they will take. One option would be to appeal the decision in court.

According to Lindholm, the decision was not a total surprise since he saw it coming for the past few days. He did hint that the decision to disapprove was not the end of the matter.

"We'll be back in some form; it's not going away," Lindholm vowed.

Construction company hit with order to cease dumping

by Arlene Surprenant
A cease and desist order has been issued by Wilmington health officials against C. P. McDonough Construction Company. The order was issued February 8 for illegal dumping and landfilling of solid waste materials on company property off Ainsworth Road.

At Tuesday's meeting of the board of health Health Director Greg Erickson told members, after receiving a complaint from another department, he investigated the site and found stumps, asphalt, and construction debris had been dumped on the property. He said he ordered all activity stopped immediately and the nuisance abated by February 19. In a phone conversation, company officials agreed to comply with the order, Erickson said. Failure to comply could result in a $500 a day fine.

Board Chairman Jim Ficociello said he would be willing to extend the deadline to March 4 to allow more time to clean up the "enormous amount" of debris and petroleum based asphalt, which reportedly has to be recycled. If the clean-up operation isn't done by that date, Ficociello said, the board should go to court and start issuing fines. Fellow board members went along with their chairman. Milton Calder asked that the board also require a certificate of disposal for the stumps. Erickson said he warned the owner that the Department of Environmental Protection could get involved and fine the company $2,500 a day under their administrative penalty laws.

Concerns were also raised by Conservation Administrator Eileen Chabot, who was in attendance along with several neighbors. She said the Conservation Commission was concerned that Mr. McDonough may also be dumping illegal material on adjacent property owned by Robert Corey. That land is by wetlands and is under consideration for a commercial subdivision.

Neighbors testified that oil trucks are being stored on McDonough's property and oil is being drained on site. There were fears some of the oil is getting into the groundwater. Erickson said, if this is the case, this is really a DEP issue. Neighbors also claimed they saw numerous dump trucks and oil trucks entering and exiting Ainsworth Road on a regular basis. The road, said neighbors, belongs to Corey. Erickson said he would need proof of violations before he could enter Corey's property to check out the claims. He asked neighbors for help in documenting any evidence of burying or spilling oil or other illegal materials on site.

Chabot said the Bank of New England has been studying McDonough's property in connection with a foreclosure. She said she saw in a report that oil has indeed been found in the ground. Chabot said she would get a copy of the report for the board.

Health officials plan to inspect McDonough's property this week to make sure the company is complying with the cease and desist order and cleaning up the site. The board also expects to meet with McDonough at their March 4 meeting and, if warranted, with Corey as well.

Auditorium work goes to bid next month

by Arlene Surprenant
As plans move forward to try to raise $200,000 for renovations to the high school auditorium, members of the Permanent Building Committee have come up with a time frame to put the project out to bid.

According to PBC Chairman Diane Allan, a notice for bidders will be sent to the Central Register March 19 and to local newspapers March 27. Sub-bids for the electrical work will be due April 10 and general bids will be due April 18. The overall cost of the project is expected to be $300,000. Town Manager Michael Cairns has agreed to draw up an article for April's town meeting asking voters to transfer $99,000 in unexpended boiler project monies to the auditorium fund. The remaining $200,000 is expected to come from ongoing fundraisers in the next few months.

Allan told this paper the design for the auditorium work was already done before the project was placed on hold for lack of funds. The project includes such aesthetic improvements as 487 new seats, carpeting, a new ceiling, newly painted walls, a new stage curtain, a handicapped seating area, and energy-efficient exterior doors. Allan said the only addition to the prior plan is a control panel for lighting and sound.

Allan explained her board decided to go through the bid process despite some question over raising the remaining funds because members wanted a firm figure to bring to the finance committee and to town meeting. Under general law, the bids can only be held for 30 days. If the $300,000 is not forthcoming, said Allan, it's possible money already pledged would have to be returned and the project could fall through. However, Allan pointed out that Performing Arts Director Lorraine Kalil has a "significant" amount of pledges already and an optimistic outlook that donations

No reconsideration for day care proposal

by Arlene Surprenant
Members of the school committee made it clear last Wednesday they would not, at this time, reconsider their vote against a full day care program at Wilmington High. A majority of the board took the stand despite a strong appeal from companies in the Business-School Partnership. Committee members agreed, however, to the formation of a sub-committee to review the idea of a before and after school program for local students in kindergarten through fifth grade.

Business representatives said the recent vote against the partnership's day care proposal came as a surprise to them. They urged the committee to give the idea a chance so that both sides could benefit.

"It isn't very often that you get an opportunity where everybody wins. This is like the answer to a prayer that we have been working on for a very long time," said Nancy Bodenstein, spokesman for Dynamics Research Corporation. Bodenstein stressed such a program could turn into a "moneymaker" for the town with any profit going into Wilmington's General Fund.

"I'm afraid we're going to close the door on something before we give it a chance," noted Jeanne Bumstead of Tectron Defense Systems.

ICI Resins spokesman Donna Welsh and others argued good day care is a "beneficial selling point" to prospective employees. They pointed out there is a need in the community and parents have to feel comfortable about leaving their children in order to come to work. What makes the partnership proposal attractive is the fact that the school system assumes any liability and high school students could get involved in some way, said the company representatives.

Under the proposal, each of the 10 firms contributing funds to the center would be allotted at least five of the 80 slots in the pre-school program. The extended day care program (before and after school) would be for Wilmington residents.

While three members of the school committee reiterated their support of the project, both Dr. Shirley Callan, chairman, and Peggy Kane were adamant against discussing a pre-school program at this time.

"At this time, particularly, my commitment on this board is to save the program that exists," said Dr. Callan.

Both women said with so much uncertainty over the school budget, the regular school curriculum, and space needs in the system, they couldn't make a decision until town meeting was over. They also pointed out, though they favored the idea of day care, there were some safety issues that needed to be addressed concerning the proposed second floor location. Kane asked how pre-schoolers would get up and down stairs in case of a fire drill.

"If there's a problem, let's work out the problem," said Al Materas of Tectron.

When no one on the prevailing side agreed to reconsider their previous vote against the center, Bob Surran made a motion to form a sub-committee to review the entire proposal. Dr. Callan refused to allow the motion because it covered the pre-school component. John DeMarco appealed the chairman's stand. His appeal lost in a three to three tie, with DeMarco, Surran, and Phil Fenton voting in favor of the appeal. Andrea Paglia was absent from the meeting. Dr. Callan explained the issue would now be taken under advisement and a sub-committee on the pre-school program would be formed at an unspecified future date. A sub-committee, which will include parents and committeemen, is in the process of being formed to look into an extended day care program.

New budget proposal would drop 25 teachers

by Arlene Surprenant
A fifth budget proposal has been submitted to the Wilmington School Committee by Supt. William Fay to comply with the committee's request to keep the FY '92 school budget at a bottom line figure of $12,671,488. In a February 12 letter to the board, Fay said his latest proposal assumes the WTA would not agree to a salary freeze. It also deletes his request to add the position of curriculum director to the school staff. The fifth option eliminates a total of 25 teachers and five tutors from the present staff. None of Fay's options or plans have yet been discussed by the school committee. Budget talks resume tonight (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Roman House.

In his fifth budget, Fay proposes cutting $1,111,036 from his initial budget figure of $13,591,392. The cuts are spread across the board and affect major and specialty areas in each school in the system. Fay proposes eliminating all coaches except head coaches and all clubs and advisors except those for the marching and elementary bands and the senior class. Fay proposes that department chairmen teach five classes a day, at a savings of $180,000, the reading director's workload be reduced, and the business partnership coordinator's salary come under the daycare account. He also recommends cutting $100,000 from special education, upping a secretary position to that of administrative assistant, and restoring the position of program supervisor for occupational education.

No mention is made in the letter of closing either the Wildwood or North Intermediate schools. These suggestions were made in three of Fay's earlier plans.

Tri-party agreement pursued by developer

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington developer James Banda, Jr. is planning to pursue a tri-party agreement with the blessing of the planning board to help fund remaining work in his Allenhurst Way subdivision off Woburn Street. Banda was one of several local developers who were hurt when their offshore bonding company went bust.

Construction began on the 12-lot subdivision August 1988. When the bond company went under last October, Banda lost a $6,000 bond payment and had to find alternate funding for his remaining nine lots, curbs, and roadway.

Banda told the board Tuesday night he tried to obtain another bond but bond companies today don't want to get involved with the real estate market.

"You couldn't imagine the way the bonding companies treat you. As soon as they find out you're a real estate developer, it's like you got the plague," Banda said.

A tri-party agreement is an agreement worked out between the town, the bank, and the builder. Banda said the only other alternative, at this point, is to file for bankruptcy but added, "nobody wants that."

Board Chairman Dave Clark urged Banda to have his attorney draw up a draft agreement by March 5 so town counsel can review the document for the board.

The board was concerned that Banda still wouldn't have enough money to finish the project. Banda told planners it would cost $85,000 to $90,000 for him to put in granite curbs and a road. If the town were to do the same job, he added, costs would go up because the town would have to pay union rates. Banda assured the board there would be enough money to finish the subdivision if four or five more lots were sold and money went to the town under the tri-party agreement.

Second housing lottery set for June

by Arlene Surprenant

The next lottery for affordable units in the Shawheen Commons housing project will probably be in June, according to certifying agent Jeanette Tighe.

Tighe told members of the Wilmington Housing Partnership last Thursday proponents hope to close on the 13 HOP (Homeownership Opportunity Program) units, which were awarded in the first lottery, by March 30. She said this would only happen if the sewer line is installed on schedule.

Though there were originally three phases in the project, the state has stipulated that the 220-unit project be built in five phases. According to developer Jay Tighe, 44 units will be built in each of the five phases, with 13 of those being deemed affordable in each phase.

In an update, Jeanette Tighe said two quadruplexes, two triplexes, and one duplex have already been built and another duplex and single family home are in the process of being framed. The model home is 90 percent finished and is located in the completed triplex, she said. All the homes can be reached from the access road off Hopkins Street.

Tighe told members six market-rate units are under agreement and there is "tremendous interest" in the remaining units in phase one. Prospective homeowners can visit the site from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends. Tighe said that town officials, a representative from the Executive Office of Community and Development, a representative from the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency, and members of the press will be invited to a ribbon cutting ceremony for the project in the near future.

Bank, board join forces

by Arlene Surprenant

The local housing partnership continued to review an offer of affordable housing from the Wilmington Commercial Bank and Trust Company at their meeting last week.

WHP members told bank president Everett Olsen they favored his first option, which would allow one affordable unit and one market rate unit to be built on a foreclosed piece of property on Silverhurst Avenue off Lake Street. The second option, said Olsen would be to build two units targeting middle income residents having a regional median income of $50,930.

Olsen had said at a prior meeting he would like to see the partnership work with his bank and a local developer to build affordable housing on the property. The board suggested the best route might be to build a duplex with a shared driveway. This would require a comprehensive permit from the Board of Appeals since duplexes are not allowed under current zoning bylaws.

At the present time there is a single family home and a barn on the 21,813 square foot site. Both will have to be demolished. There is about 45 feet of frontage. The parcel is zoned R-10 and contains a hooplup to water and sewer.

WHP member Odette Kent said she would like at least one unit to fall under the state's affordable guidelines so it could count toward the town's affordable housing stock. Others agreed. Olsen said since there would be no need of subsidies from the state, the home could go to a Wilmington family. He added bank officials will work on the figures to keep the price of the home low.

As part of the entire process, Olsen proposed submitting preliminary plans to the partnership, meeting with abuttors to explain the proposal, and going through a comprehensive permit process which members said would take about 60 days.

Good Guy nominations

The "Good Guy" Committee is looking for a deserving person in the community to honor as this year's "Good Guy" recipient. This event - the 23 annual - is designed to honor that person (non-political) who goes beyond the normal call of duty to make our community a better place to live in.

If you know of anyone whom you feel should be deserving of this award, please help the committee by submitting your nomination, with the reasons you feel this individual should be so rewarded, to the "Good Guy" Committee, P.O. box 387, Wilmington. Deadline for entries is Friday, April 5, and the award will be presented at a banquet on May 11 at the Sons of Italy Hall in Wilmington.

The chairperson is Harry Cunningham, 1990 recipient.

Arts lottery

A workshop explaining the new application for grants from the Mass. Arts Lottery (now the Mass. Cultural Council) will be held at the Wilmington Arts Center Tuesday evening, February 26 at seven o'clock. It is mandatory that students seeking grants for scholarships attend this workshop in order that they learn how to complete the new application forms where help will be given, explaining the new forms. Applicants for scholarships must be able to submit slides, samples or tapes of their talents; must have been accepted at the college they expect to attend and show a definite benefit to the community.

As with all state funding, there have been some cutbacks, and we are certain to be facing more. The Wilmington Council for the Arts must therefore be more selective in their choice of recipients. Parents are invited to accompany their seniors if they wish. Applicants, other than students are welcome to attend. As in the past, all forms must be properly submitted with directions followed exactly before being considered.

Applications may be obtained at either the Town Hall or at Wilmington Memorial Library. The deadline for the submission of these applications is Wednesday, March 20.

The completed and properly typed forms may be returned to the Wilmington Council for the Arts, Town Hall, Wilmington, not later than Wednesday, March 20. For more information call Mrs. E. White at 658-2042.

No one likes to hear from the Internal Revenue Service except, perhaps to get a refund check. Yet, some 72,000 refund checks - worth more than $40 million were returned to the IRS last year because people neglected to report a change of address.

Fact is, it's smart to let the IRS know when you move, even to get bad news faster. If the IRS questions something on a tax return, or sends a deficiency notice, and the post office doesn't forward your mail, you may not discover you're in trouble until the tax collector slaps a lien on your bank account. It's happened.

To notify the IRS of an address change: correct the mailing label when you file your tax return; and/or write the local IRS service center, giving your name, both old and new addresses, and your social security number; and/or file a change of address Form 8822. ## Honor roll decision on hold

by Arlene Surprenant
A decision on whether to continue using the present middle school honor roll has been tabled for two weeks by the Wilmington School Committee.

Last Wednesday, West Intermediate Principal James Jordan explained how the current honor roll is set up. He said students have a chance to make High Honors if they have all A's in major subjects and no lower than one B in a specialty area. To make Honors, students have to have all A's and B's in major subjects and only one C in a specialty subject. To make Honorable Mention, students have to have A's and B's in major subjects and no more than two C's in specialty areas. Jordan said 50 to 60 percent of his students usually make one of the three levels on the honor roll.

Jordan was present to address concerns by some school committeemen and parents who feel specialty areas, like music and gym, shouldn't carry as much weight as major subjects. Jordan said less than one percent of his students are kept off the honor roll for lack of effort in non-major areas. He recommended that the board retain the honor roll which has been in effect for the past four years.

There was some discussion on whether a principal should be able to use discretion and put a student with one or more D's on the honor roll. Committee member Phil Fenton noted, in the past, some discretion was allowed if there was a personality conflict between a teacher and pupil. Most members, however, felt such action by a principal detracts from the meaning of being on the honor roll. Any further discussion was tabled until the next regular school committee meeting.

Local podiatric surgeon, Dr. Kenneth M. Leavitt has returned from a visit to Europe where he was invited to demonstrate advanced techniques on American foot surgery to Belgian and German physicians.

In Munich, Germany, Leavitt performed surgery to remove a neuroma and correct in-grown nails. He was assisted by a German physician who was eager to learn advanced American techniques which Leavitt routinely uses in his practice.

Dr. Leavitt spent three days in Ixelle, Belgium, a suburb of Brussels, lecturing and performing surgeries. He spent a day lecturing and round tabling with Belgian physicians. Next day, he participated in a 12 hour marathon round of surgeries to demonstrate various techniques, including laser surgery. They had special interest concerning in-grown nail surgery. On the third day, Dr. Leavitt lectured on bunion surgery, then helped remove a bone spur from the patient of an orthopedic foot surgeon at Ixelle Hospital.

This wasn't the first time that Leavitt has lectured in Europe, nor will it be the last. "Regular contact allows us to share our best techniques and learn from each other," Leavitt said. Last fall, a Dutch physician visited Leavitt's office and health officials in Czechoslovakia reportedly are interested in arranging a visit.

More professional recognition has been accorded to Leavitt in the past few months. He recently was elected a Fellow of the prestigious American Society for Laser Medicine and Surgery. Criteria for election is based on achievements in the practice of medicine. "It is rare for a podiatric surgeon to be elected to the Society, virtually all of the members are M.D.s," Leavitt said.

The American College of Foot Surgeons recently accepted Leavitt as an Associate after he completed years of surgical experience and passed a qualifying examination. Leavitt, attended Wilmington schools, finished undergraduate studies at Boston University in 1979, then began his Podiatric Medical School training at Illinois College of Podiatric Medicine. After graduation in 1983, he opened his own practice in Wilmington. In 1985 he was the first podiatrist to receive surgical privileges at New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham. He opened an office in Charlestown in 1989. Currently, Dr. Leavitt has hospital privileges in New England Memorial Hospital, Stoneham; Winthrop Hospital and Hahnemann Hospital in Boston.

In 1986, he introduced the carbon dioxide laser to his practice in Wilmington. In 1988, he performed the first successful surgery in the Boston area to replace an arthritic toe joint with a life long Titanium implant. In 1989 his practice became the first office-based podiatric surgical facility in Massachusetts certified by the Accreditation Association for Podiatric Surgical facilities. He has received advanced training in microsurgery, internal screw fixation and carbon dioxide laser surgery and has lectured and performed case work in laser foot surgery in Belgium at the request of the European Association of Foot Doctors. He also serves on the adjunct faculty of the New York College of Podiatric Medicine and is an assistant clinical professor of podiatric medicine at his alma mater in Chicago, Illinois.

'Eddie' at Shawsheen Tech

"Eddie," the improvisational theater piece based on the true story of a Rhode Island youth who died at age 16 of alcohol poisoning will be presented in daytime and evening performances on Monday, March 11, at Shawsheen Tech, 100 Cook St., Billerica. About 35 to 50 Shawsheen students will have roles in the performances with professional actors playing the major roles.

Community organizations who would like to display information about drug and alcohol prevention, awareness and counseling are invited to set up a table in the school lobby prior to the evening performance, at no charge. Interested groups should call Louise Sorabella at Shawsheen, 667-2111, ext. 111 to arrange for table space.

Performances of Eddie at Shawsheen Tech are being co-sponsored by the Parents Advisory Council (PAC), the Shawsheen Chapter of Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD) and the peer leadership program. There is no admission fee to "Eddie," but donations will be accepted.

The play is not simply Eddie's story, but tells of the profound effect Eddie's death had not only on his family but on his peers and the community. Students will see the daytime play; parents and others in the community are invited to the evening performance.

BUDGET TIME...

The stealth candidate

by Larz F. Neilson

An anonymous candidate has taken out papers for selectman in the upcoming Wilmington town election.

The stealth candidacy is seen as either a campaign ploy to draw attention or an attempt to confuse and mislead any opposing candidates. What the candidate has to hide is unknown. Perhaps he mixed up anonymous with unanimous. Or maybe he figures he can win if enough voters cast blanks.

Maybe it's the President's invisible twin brother Skippy. Or maybe it's just someone having an identity crisis.

Town Clerk Patty Ward was taken aback when she was asked to give out nomination papers without securing the identity of the person receiving them. The person cited a section of a law, and referred Mrs. Ward to the Secretary of State's office. On calling that office, she was told that unless the town had accepted Section 9A, she could not demand identification.

So she gave the papers to the man, who the town clerk said she had never seen before.

But the issue began to bother the town clerk, so she went to her law books and read the entire chapter. And in Section 17, she found language telling her that she in fact could demand identification.

The only problem was that the papers had already been given out to the anonymous person.

Can the town clerk now refuse to accept the completed papers? No, said David Sullivan of the Secretary of State's office. They were duly issued by the town clerk, and must be accepted.

But no other anonymous candidate will be given nomination papers.

The matter is apparently a subsequent chapter in a mystery poll that was taken by phone a few weeks ago. Someone was calling several people in town, asking about various local candidates and issues.

Just for the record, the other candidates for selectmen are incumbent Robert Cain, and challengers Tony Capuano, Margaret Imbimbo and John Forrest.

In a move that may or may not be related, an anonymous person delivered a message to the Town Crier sometime Saturday night, in the form of a rock through the editor's office window. One pane in a window on the east side of the building was broken, and a rock tore a screen on a second window.

Could it have been the campaign announcement from the anonymous candidate?

Paul on pols

by Paul H. Sullivan

Last week Tewksbury lost one of the great unsung citizens of the town when Priscilla Coldwell passed away. Priscilla was the wife of Charlie Coldwell, a long-time selectman in Tewksbury. During Charlie's tenure on the board his wife's guidance and encouragement were instrumental in helping Charlie be the fine public servant he was, serving in various capacities of town government over the last two decades.

Many times we take for granted the contributions of the spouses of our elected officials. But like the true life partner that Priscilla was, she felt every heartache that Charlie felt, and in politics there are many.

Priscilla Coldwell served as a nurse at the Tewksbury State Hospital, raised six loving daughters, was a grandmother to a tribe of grandchildren; all this while being a ray of sunshine to everyone she came in contact with.

Priscilla Coldwell will be missed by all who knew her. The pain that Charlie and their daughters feel is being shared by all that know the Coldwell family.

Last week the headline read, Budget called a 'Twilight Zone'. The threats of layoffs loam great and there is fear that many of the education initiatives will be wiped out. Most of us would assume that the Tewksbury town manager would be hard at work toiling over the budget, reviewing options to increase revenue, prioritizing the budget and doing other town related things in the quest to administrate municipal government.

But during these tough financial times Tewksbury Town Manager David Cressman found time (during business hours) to call and complain to the editor of the Town Crier about speculation that he may be a candidate for the town manager's job in Billerica. He complained that these stories were a complete fabrication made up in the mind of the newspaper or its employees. This even though it had been widely speculated among politicians and the coffee shop townie types.

Cressman has a right to be upset about speculation which he labels inaccurate, but he should not look to the newspaper to blame if these rumors are unfounded.

As a matter of fact, the first person to raise the speculation with me was a Cressman political ally and member in good standing of the "Piccadilly Pals". The rumor of Cressman's candidacy has been the subject of speculation in Billerica, where other possible contenders for the post may include Wilmington Assistant Town Manager Jeff Hull and Billerica native Mike McLaughlin, presently the Methuen town manager, along with any other living and breathing person looking for a job.

Cressman should go back to work to figure out his budget problems and quit whining.

25 years ago

The February 24, 1966 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

A special town meeting regarding the proposed multi-million dollar stadium to be located in Wilmington was scheduled for April 4, just three weeks after the annual meeting. If no other articles were submitted, it was speculated that this would be the shortest town meeting on record.

Fresh from a training session in Colorado, Officer Joe Cuoco was

Albert Merrill, Jr. of Jacobs Road, was undergoing recruit training at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center in Illinois.

Joe Ryan's Center Barber Shop was advertising "no price change." All regular haircuts for men and boys were still $1.00 while crews and flat tops were $1.25.

Lance Corporal David Deming was serving with the Marine Corps on Okinawa.

Elia's was offering top round roasts for 89 cents a pound; chuck hamburger, three pounds for $1.89 and 100 teabags for 69 cents. Coupons promised 10 cents off the purchase of one pound of Shurline red sockeye salmon; 20 cents off a pound of butter (your choice) with a purchase of $5 or more; and $1.02 toward the purchase of a $1.77 teflon cooke and bake sheet.

As the Massachusetts banking industry continues to sag from the heavy debt of sour real estate loans, you might be wondering how safe your money is in local savings institutions.

With Bank of New England in the hands of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (F.D.I.C.) many experts point to the smaller members of the banking industry as the most stable in the present economy.

Robert Fichter is the vice-president of the Massachusetts Bankers Association and agrees that some banks are "better off" than others if their investment portfolio consisted of mostly single family home mortgages. "They're better off than the bank that did a lot of commercial real estate", said Fichter.

The "big daddy" of the commercial loans was Bank of New England.

But smaller, local institutions like the Lowell Five Cents Savings Bank appear to be on a solid footing, despite the harshness of the recession on its larger competitors.

Lowell Five President Gerald Wallace attributes that to his banks tradition of "staying with residential and owner occupied loans." "We look at ourselves as a community bank geared toward the individual", said Wallace.

The Lowell Five reports assets exceeding $375 million. Bank President Wallace said that the foreclosure situation "is not a disaster" and that the biggest problems have been with building loans.

As the banking industry continues to whether the storm, some better than others, industry spokesman Robert Fichter said that the media has created a panic situation regarding the integrity of the F.D.I.C. Since 1933, the deposit insurance corporation has guaranteed $100,000 per depositor, per bank, with retirement and joint accounts treated separately.

The F.D.I.C. is the backbone to the integrity and soundness of the American banking industry.

Fichter contends that the Boston media has carried misleading headlines that would make the average person think the F.D.I.C. itself were going to fail, when in fact that is not the case.

"There was a headline in the Boston Globe recently which read 'Government worried about F.D.I.C.'. If I weren't a banking insider I'd have good reason to panic based just on that", said Fichter.

In reality, Fichter said the F.D.I.C. "can't fail" and if worse came to worse the government would initiate a tax increase to fund the agency.

Fichter argues that regardless of a bank's size or specialties the present recession is affecting all financial institutions to various degrees. "In Massachusetts the period of stress has coincided with an economic recession, and when you put those together it has given us a pretty high misery index", said Fichter, noting that there were eleven bank failures in Massachusetts last year followed by a crisis in Rhode Island where 45 non-federally insured institutions failed.

So what "types" of banks are faring the best in the middle of this recession/banking crisis?

One local banker, who preferred not to be named, said that the situation is serious for small and big institutions alike.

"All the banks overextended themselves. They took advantage of the economic conditions, thereby being overzealous in their lending", said the local bank vice-president.

If smaller banks are not immune to the banking crisis and could go the way of Bank of New England, one case in point is the Andover Bank which just posted a $9.3 million dollar loss for last year.

Spokesperson Lori Teske attributed the loss to the deteriorating real estate market but emphasized that the bank has a "healthy" capital-to-asset ratio of 12.7%. The capital to asset ratio is the barometer to federal regulators revealing the stability of banks.

In the case of Andover Bank a higher percentage of residential mortgages in comparison to commercial was not helpful.

Fichter has a banking reform agenda to make his industry, which employs 65,000 people in the state, more competitive. He said the restraints in place since 1933, imposing a virtual ban on interstate banking and completing separating banking and commerce, are no longer realistic for today's market. "Over the years banking has accumulated regulations like barnacles", said Fichter.

One of the barnacles is an inequity in taxation. Massachusetts banks are taxed at a rate two percent above other businesses in the state. Fichter and the Mass. Bankers Association will move to amend that and remove some of the restrictions on what banks can invest in.

However, regardless of the recession or government regulations, Fichter said that "any F.D.I.C. insured bank, small or large, remains a safe place for consumers' money."

Briefly in politics...

At the end of last week you may have thought you had seen it all. We pounded the living daylight out of Saddam Hussein's forces and suddenly an offer to withdraw his troops is made with a string of conditions attached including everything except handing over the deed to the White Mountains.

Then came the Tewksbury Personnel Board Wage Review Subcommittee.

Their proposal, though not as global in scope, was just about as absurd and untimely.

Of the 40 non-union Tewksbury municipal employees, one, Executive Secretary Sandy Barbeau, has been targeted by the board for a freeze in pay.

This must have been the board's strange method for showing its appreciation of the sacrifice Sandy's family is making.

Sandy's husband William is one of thousands who are more or less nose to nose with what is left of Saddam Hussein's army in Kuwait.

With the ground war clock ticking fast, William Barbeau, a front-line medic, has left behind his firefighter's job in Somerville and a good percentage of the family income to fight for his country.

And how does the grand Personnel Board in Tewksbury show its appreciation?

They freeze his wife's salary in an apparently discriminate move filled with political undertones.

But the proposal may be dead on arrival. Finance Committee Chairman Joe Gill said, "I'm against any singling out of any individual, and this is unfortunate that this has leaked out at the time that it has."

Meanwhile, the Personnel Review Board might want to review a course in basic public relations.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I am writing to clear up some confusion that has apparently occurred with regard to my appointment of Rep. James Miceli to the Committee on Banks and Banking. Apparently, someone from your newspaper called a staff person on the committee to verify that Rep. Miceli had been appointed to that Committee, and was told that he had not been. That is not true. His appointment has not yet been ratified by the Democratic Caucus, as required by our rules, but that is only because the next caucus meeting is not scheduled until Tuesday, February 19. I expect my appointment of Jim to that powerful and prestigious Committee will be unanimously ratified by our Democratic colleagues at that time, because of the high esteem in which he is held and the respect everyone has for his integrity and ability. I asked Jim to serve on the Banks and Banking Committee because we need a person with his knowledge of banking and fiscal affairs in that position at a time in our Commonwealth when so many of our banks and lending institutions are in serious trouble.

I might add, by the way, that Jim did not fight with me over office space either, as has been portrayed in a cartoon which appeared in your newspaper. There was never any question that Jim would continue to occupy the same office he has worked out of so diligently for his constituents and the Commonwealth these past few years. I never even entertained a thought of moving him. I consider Jim Miceli to be, as he has always been for me, both a resourceful and valued colleague and a close and trusted friend.

Warmest regards.

Sincerely,
Charles Flaherty
Speaker of the House

Editor's reply: Thank you for the clarification on the timing of the appointment. Timing was really our only point, since the rep had taken us to task in his letter for not having reported his new committee assignment earlier.

As to the cartoon, the fact that you as speaker would trouble yourself to respond to a rep's hometown paper bears out the point that the cartoon was making. We'll concede that it wasn't a fight, but it certainly must have been an interesting conversation.

It is comforting to know that the rep enjoys a close relationship with the speaker.

Dear Larz:

The town of Tewksbury has a lot of work to do. I think it's time to clean our own house of the corruption and conflict of interest that has become common place political practice. For the people who don't know what I am talking about I would like to recommend the Boston Globe's focus on "Tewksbury politics" which has run for about a month in the Sunday edition.

I am tired of Tewksbury public officials having close ties with developers and state officials. I am sick of Tewksbury public officials protecting their friends when they should be looking out for the good of all citizens of Tewksbury.

For these reasons, and many more, I am supporting David Leblanc for Tewksbury selectman. I ask the residents of Tewksbury to look very closely at this election and choose someone who's only special interest is the people's interest.

Sincerely,
Kevin Comtois

Dear Larz:

Day in and day out we see and hear on television that Iraqi civilian casualties are mounting. We are shown the great destruction of what is purported to be densely populated residential areas or air raid shelters. When we see this we begin to question our government's objectives: Is the United States doing this intentionally? Or was this a military miscalculation? Regardless of intent, we as human beings are saddened by the loss of civilian lives. Some of us may even become infuriated by these unnecessary losses. You are welcome to your own feelings and opinions, but let us not forget some other important facts.

First, keep in mind, the scores of civilian deaths suffered by Iraqis during the eight year war between Iran and Iraq.

Second, remember the violence rained down upon Saddam Hussein's own people, the Kurds, by the hands of Hussein himself. In 1988, in an effort to quell their plight for independence, Hussein launched a chemical weapons attack on a heavily populated Kurdish town. Several thousands of innocent lives were lost. Not to mention those who suffer today from the lasting effects of the deadly chemicals.

Even more recently, we must remember the havoc Hussein has created for the people of Israel. This nation has repeatedly declared its neutrality in this matter. Nevertheless, Hussein continues to bomb densely populated areas of Israel which have no military significance at all. Every day, the Israeli citizens have to carry on with their lives with the threat, at any moment, of conventional and perhaps, chemical attacks.

Close to home, let us not forget our own troops. Remember the public display of the Allied prisoners of war. Each looked as if they had been mentally and physically abused, a blatant violation of Article 17 of the Geneva Conference. Remember also, the young lives which have already been lost to the Gulf War and all those who are missing in action.

Finally, remember Saddam Hussein's own promise to put innocent civilians into potential military targets of the Allied Forces.

When we see these stories on television remember all the facts and all the faces attached to those facts. The will regrettably, be more occasions of civilian deaths and more military casualties but, remember all of the stories, do not simply remember the stories which Saddam Hussein wants us to.

Dear Larz:

There has been a number of inquiries concerning the origin of the many American flags that have recently been placed along Middlesex Avenue and Church Street on the electric poles from the cemetery to Adams Street. The flags are currently in place by authorization of the town officials, as a show of support for our servicemen and women in the Middle East "Desert Storm" operation.

Twenty of the flags were initially purchased by the Memorial Day Parade Committee which consisted of the Marine Corps League and the other veterans' organizations in Wilmington. Donations from the local Lions Club allowed the Marine Corps League to purchase another 10 flags to be used for the same purpose by the Parade Committee.

One of the long range goals of the Wilmington veterans' groups is to be able to line the entire parade route from the plaza on Main Street, where the parade begins, to the town cemetery where it ends, with American flags for each of our future Memorial Day parades. It is hoped that this goal will be reached in the near future through more acquisitions and donations.

Wilmington officials, the Reading Electric Light Department and the highway department have been most supportive of the veterans' organizations and our servicemen with respect to the display of flags on Memorial Day and during the current crisis.

Dear Larz:

After reading Kevin Sowyrd's column this week regarding a young woman's fight with breast cancer, I found it just a bit ironic to turn the page and then read Ms. Veligor's biting attack against Mr. Sowyrd's journalistic capabilities. I felt compelled to respond.

Last winter, after facing several difficult months of battling red tape bureaucracy, when no one else would listen when no one else would help, Kevin Sowyrd took the time to write a touching, sensitive column about my beloved father's untimely death, due to asbestos (Town Crier, Dec. 14, 1990). Kevin's genuine concern for my family's plight made an unbearable situation a little easier to bear, knowing at least someone cared.

Ms. Veligor compares Kevin's attitude to that of an "immature adolescent, smart aleck." I distinctly remember the end of the infamous League of Women Voters debate last fall featuring Rep. Miceli and Kevin Sowyrd. It was Rep. Miceli who refused to shake Kevin's hand following the completion of the debate. Immature, adolescent behavior if I ever saw it.

And finally, if Ms. Veligor thinks that Kevin Sowyrd writes "vicious condescending diatribe," she should perhaps read her own letter. Now that was pretty vicious.

Sincerely,
Dorothy (Baker) Clark

Dear Larz, Dear Kevin, Dear Gail Marceau:

Thanks for the item in Feb. 13 Town Crier! It must have taken a lot of courage to 'go public,' but we need more of it. I am living proof of your saying "sometimes a single person willing to fight can make a difference in all our lives,"

Living proof that, with us, your OB care is a labor of love.

Last spring, the Lannan family had a baby. Yes, the whole family. The lives of fathers, brothers and sisters are forever touched by the new addition.

From the moment the Lannans chose New England Memorial for the birth of their baby, they felt the genuine warmth and involvement of our OB staff. The educational classes for first-time mothers, the informative literature, prepared childbirth classes, prenatal exercise and nutritional programs—all designed to support and enhance a pregnancy. Likewise, our postpartum support groups, sibling classes and refresher courses provided the follow-up care that gave a real sense of confidence, and competence.

The radiance of a new mother's face. An infant's first smile. The pride in a father's eyes—living proof that at New England Memorial, we deliver a labor of love.

Wilmington senior topics

Surplus commodities

Surplus commodities should arrive Thursday morning, Feb. 21. Distribution will begin at 10:00. We should receive raisins, flour, peanut butter and butter. Qualification will be the same as in past deliveries.

Combined social

The Council's therapeutic social for March and April will be a bus trip to the Sheridan Inn in Nashua, N.H. Tuesday, April 2. The buses will leave the Senior Center at 11 a.m. arriving at the destination at noon. A delicious dinner with all the trimmings will be served shortly after arrival. Music will be provided for dancing. After dinner we will be entertained by a very funny comedian and a talented singer. We should be returning to the Center about 4:30.

Signup for this social started Friday, Feb. 15. A $7 non-refundable deposit is required to help defray the cost of the afternoon. If you will be taking your own car because the school buses are too uncomfortable for you, please let us know when you sign up.

Go, let us know, or pay

It is necessary for the Council to pay for all reservations in advance. Any senior who has signed up and fails to notify us that they will be unable to attend, will be billed for the full cost of their ticket.

Wilmington only

If a senior is unable to go to the Center to sign up due to illness or personal reasons, or they feel they cannot attend because they are not able to pay the $7-deposit, call Edie, 658-2258. Please remember the therapeutic socials are for Wilmington residents only who are 60 years of age or older. The only exceptions to the age is the spouse of a senior who may be a year or so younger.

Hearing aid specialist

The hearing aid specialist will be at the Center Friday morning from 10 to noon. He will be checking the hearing of seniors and hearing aids for proficiency. This service is free to Wilmington seniors.

Income tax assistance

Mr. Hughes, our AARP certified income tax preparer will be helping seniors with their federal and state income taxes Mondays until April or until he has helped all on the appointment list. His first appointment will be at 9 a.m. Monday, Feb. 25. If you want help, call for an appointment, 657-7495 or 658-2258. More and more changes are being made on both the federal and state tax forms that are supposed to make the completion of our forms easier. Unfortunately to many of us these forms seem to get more and more complicated. Mr. Hughes will be here to alleviate the confusion.

Whist Feb. 25

The last whist of the month will be held in the function room of the Senior Center Monday, Feb. 25 starting at 1 p.m. Don't forget to take a chance on winning one of the three $5 donated by the Kiwanis Club drawn at the whist. It is only 25 cents a chance. The money earned pays for the prizes for the games.

More on SS

Many seniors are receiving notices from the Social Security Office that they will be having money taken from their Social Security checks for so many months as a penalty for over payments. The primary cause for this is that seniors are not reporting, or under reporting their yearly income earnings. Seniors are allowed to earn only a certain amount of money before they will lose a dollar for every $3 over the stated amount. A person under 65 years can earn only $7,080 in 1991. If they go over that amount they are penalized. Sixty-five to 69 year-olds are allowed to earn $9,720. If you earn above these levels you must report it to the Social Security Office in Lowell. Failure to do so can also result in a fine. Any senior over the age of 70 can earn as much money as they wish and still receive their full Social Security check.

Report changes

SSI recipients must report any change in their income and resources as well as changes in their living arrangements. Failure to do so can mean the loss of your SSI check, Medicaid and food stamp benefits. You can report changes in your income or living situation to the Social Security Office by calling the toll free number 1-800-2345 SSA between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. Monday through Friday.

and upcoming fundraisers will help her meet her goal. In addition, the bidding climate is so good in Massachusetts right now it's possible the job could cost less, Allan said.

A week long Celebration of the Arts is planned for March 8 to March 16 to raise funds for the project. During the week, the play "Our Town" will be performed by students, parents, and teachers and several concerts and art exhibits will be held. The Sons of Italy will host a $30 per person dinner dance. Residents may also make contributions to the renovation fund or pledge $200 for one of the new seats.

Allan noted it will be to every-one's advantage to support Kalil and her committee because a newly renovated auditorium will benefit the whole town. If enough money is raised for the project, added the chairman, construction will last three to four months and a renovated Barrows Cultural Center could be a reality by the end of next fall.

TMHS clinches another title

It was the 19th straight dual meet victory for the TMHS girls and their second consecutive undefeated season.

The Redgals finished at 6-0-0 in the conference and 8-0-0 overall. The team not only won its conference, but was the Northern Area and State Class B Relay champs as well.

In the victory over Methuen last week Tewksbury took first in six events while sweeping the mile and the two mile.

Finishing one-two-three in the mile were Heather Farrand (5:32.6), Julie Barker (6:09.3) and Susie Seeley (6:17.2). The two mile was swept by Tammi Brooks (12:22.2) and freshmen Christine Hooper and Kendra Hansford.

The girls also performed solidly at the Auerbach/MIAA Meet held last weekend at Harvard University, placing in four events and coming up with two seventh place finishes.

Debbie Takach took a third in the 55 meter and the 4x400 relay team of Takach, Kim Farrand, Heather Farrand and Mary Brady took home a fifth place.

Making the most of few ice fishing tools

by Bill Conlon
Ice fishing puts a real crimp on your creativity. You only got a few tools available, so you have to make the most of what you've got.

In the summer, you've got a full arsenal of lures on hand, from odd topwater plugs to fat, ugly, rubber things for bouncing off the bottom. Somewhere, in that hook-tangled mess called your tackle box, there's at least one lure that will bring a violent response.

Ice fishing just doesn't allow quite so much variety. Unless you enjoy jiggling (all the heart-stopping thrill of a butter churn), your choices are down to putting a shiner on the line and letting it swing. If something swims by, you may get lucky. If not, the day can seem rather long.

Oh, all right. I'll admit it. Ice fishing can be awfully boring some days. (And the way my current ice fishing season has gone, make that VERY boring, much like watching the World Championship of Lawn Growth.)

But there are ways to get the most out of your bait, to tip the scales in your favor.

Most guys I fish with are content to just let their minnows dangle all day, checking once or twice to see if they're alive. But I can't sit still that long. By the time my last tip-up is planted in the ice, I'm ready to start checking bait.

Walking the circuit and checking bait can pay off in many ways.

First, if your minnow is tired, or even dead, after just a few minutes, try changing your depth. The usual practice of your setting bait "a few inches off the bottom" might put your bait directly in a Dead Zone. Oxygen in a winter pond is critical and oxygen levels may vary greatly with depth.

One day, all my bait came up dead after a few minutes in the deeps, but I found they stayed happy just a few inches beneath the ice. Hmm. So I changed all my tipups to put the bait near the top, and the flags started popping left and right. It seems the oxygen, and the fish, were inches under the ice, and not deep.

A dead minnow with scales intact may indicate oxygen starvation at that depth. Watch for it.

If your bait has endured a "hit" or two, it begins to look beat, which is fine. Fish prefer an easy meal, and a minnow that barely twitches will bring more response than one full of vim and vigor. But nothing lasts forever, unfortunately.

If your minnow passes on to the Bait Bucket in the Sky, or is just too hammered to go on, there's a final contribution the little guy can make to your fishing day. Instead of just tossing your former employee to the seagulls, use a thumbnail to rip off all the scales, and rinse them into the water with your new bait. (Yes, that's legal.)

When a minnow is struck, it loses scales in big cloud. Contrary to the vernacular, fish don't bite -- they suck. Fish flare their gills and pull in a mouthful of water, hopefully with a meal inside. That suction will blast the scales right off a small baitfish, and those loose scales then sprinkle down in an aquatic light show.

Your late minnow's scales in the water might be enough to convince another fish that something was just attacked, and it may come closer to look for stragglers.

After that, feel free to use the old minnow as seagull bait (drawing them in close enough for snowball practice) or else flip him into the air to see which "lucky" tipup his head is pointed at when he lands. Boredom is a terrible thing, eh?

Another reason to check your bait often is the variety. Imagine a fish, swimming along, when a baitfish suddenly pops up out of the weeds and then drifts back down. Oh? If nothing else, that might pique his curiosity, which is just what you're hoping for. I've had loads of hits immediately after checking bait, in some cases before the bait settles back down.

If the fish still won't cooperate, try varying your depths, even if the oxygen level seems adequate. There are "thermoclines" in every pond, which are invisible barriers where warm water comes in contact with colder water. Temperature changes at a thermocline can be remarkable, and fish might not be interested in crossing the line for a meal. You're advised to put your bait where the fish want it, not where you want it.

The final, most critical reason for doing bait checks is to check out the tipup itself. When doing a check, tug on the line and make sure that the flag pops as it should. A frozen or jammed tipup isn't worth a hoot, and missing bait may be a sign that your tipup failed to register a hit. A spare tipup is always a wise thing to take along. And who knows? That frozen tipup could have been sitting in the "hot hole" of the day.

Besides, checking bait at least will give you something to do when the fishing is slow.

Tewksbury Rod & Gun Club will offer another free Hunter Safety Course, from March 7 to April 18, 7 to 9 p.m., at the Chandler Street headquarters. Show up for the first class and you're enrolled for what will be an interesting and informative class. Those of age receive a hunter safety certificate which is or will be required to obtain a hunting license in most states and provinces of Canada. Good stuff, free.

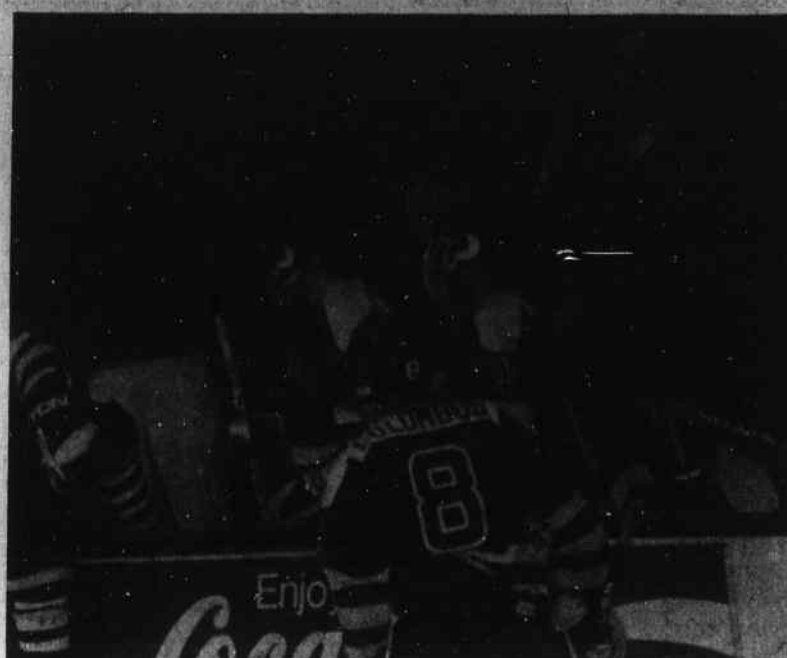

Another Hunter Safety Course is planned for March 2, 9, 16 and 23, from 8 a.m. to 12:30, in Bedford, at the Woburn Sportmen's Association. For more info, call Hunter Safety at (508) 792-7434.

The Mass. Division of Fisheries & Wildlife is asking for voluntary contributions to its non-game wildlife fund, made on your annual state tax form. Last year, the voluntary contributions exceeded $400,000. The funds are used to preserve the state's endangered non-game wildlife, from eagles to the Plymouth red-bellied turtle. Worthing cause, so please think about it at tax time.

The Greater Lowell Fly Fishers will hold a third ice fishing derby this weekend, which is unusual for them. Normally the GLFF runs but two derbies a year. This time, the event will be held on Crystal Lake (Freeman's Lake), off Route 40 in North Chelmsford. Parking will be available at Marty's bait shop, or in the upper lot only of the American Legion Hall nearby. Entry is $10, and the top prize will be $300, with cash prizes for the top ten biggest fish. Crystal Lake is said to be a good bass pond.

Last Thursday, I committed my Most Stupid Act of 1991, at least to date. (Still a long year ahead.) On that rainy, sloppy morning I went ice fishing on Silver Lake in Wilmington, there to try my hand at the big pike allegedly swimming there. I got my gear and stepson together, bought bait and new blades for my hand auger, and all proceeded well until I got to the lake. There, to my horror, I found that I'd left my cold weather boots on the kitchen table. Oh, no. Too far to go home to get them, and the clock was running on a busy day. So, William the Dim proceeded to go ice fishing, in the rain and slush, in canvas sneakers. My feet were soaked through to the ankles in my first three steps onto the lake, and the next two and a half hours were spent between pain and numbness. No real harm done, but a valuable lesson was learned:

The boots will stay in the car until mid-April. Talk about cold feet!

Another title

TMHS coaches Don Ciampa and Rich Deschler have led their team to a 14 win season that was capped last week by wins over Haverhill and Xaverian.

Tourney squad

The WHS hockey squad is ready to do some tourney celebrating after a 3-0 Rob Lesko shutout of Methuen clinched a postseason berth last week.

GETTING THE MASSAGE

If blood circulation to the scalp declines, it means that the network of tiny capillaries which nourish the hair roots will have trouble fulfilling its role. As a result, hair may suffer and become dull looking, or even begin to fall out. Those with oily hair are especially prone to slowing scalp circulation and a resultant hardening of oil and dead skin cells on the scalp known as "tight scalp." Ten to 15 minutes of brushing hair down to the scalp may stimulate circulation, but this vigorous approach may result in broken hair shafts. It is better to massage the scalp with the fingertips for two to three minutes in order to achieve the same stimulating results. A warm, tingling feeling in the scalp, is a good indication that the massage is having a beneficial effect.

Dull looking or damaged hair may also need special conditioning. Your hairdresser will know exactly what to prescribe for healthy and beautiful looking hair. Be sure to call us at SHAWSHEEN HAIR SALON, 161 Shawsheen Ave., Rt. 129, Wilmington, (508) 658-8475. Hours: open six days and nights of the week, closed Sunday. Look to the sky and pray

The men and women, some barely grown
Who are serving today in Desert Storm.
for the love in your prayers shall keep them warm.

Warm against hatred, of which Iraqis are fed
Warm against insecurities, of feelings unsure
Warm against the cold effects of a war
Yes, look to the sky, today, and pray

Onward

The last time Bill Thurston graced these pages, he was carrying a Jim Miceli campaign sign. At the rally on Sunday, his carried message had fewer words, but much more impact.

Desert Storm rally draws hundreds

by Bill Conlon

The air was cold Sunday, but the hearts were warm on Tewksbury common.

Organized "at the last minute" by the Tewksbury Patriotic Activities Committee, according to chairman Jerry Selissen, Sunday's "Support the Troops" rally was able to send a clear message that the town and its people truly care and worry about those stationed overseas.

Well over 500 people braved near freezing temperatures at the event, which featured speeches, music, and U.S. flags in abundance, with a veteran's color guard marching in to a tape of the contemporary tune "God Bless the U.S.A." Flags small and large were waved by members of the crowd, and yellow ribbons were everywhere.

Speakers took turns reading off the names of those stationed in the Persian Gulf, each ending their list with a wish that the troops come home soon, safe and sound.

Cyndee Carson and Mary Pepin offered a "Peace Flag," bearing an image of a white dove carrying a yellow ribbon. The flag was made by the Tewksbury Piecemakers, a quilting group, and was then raised on one of the three town flagpoles on the common.

When Carson introduced herself as a member of the "Piecemakers," a hush fell over the crowd on the common. Perhaps the name of the group sounded like that of a protest organization, but the raising of the new flag convinced the crowd that all was well.

Mary Jo Britton, whose husband is stationed in the Gulf, offered a poem, "Look to the Sky," which is printed above. Like many of the family members who took a turn at the microphone, her presentation ended with a wish for the troops to hurry home, safe and sound.

One speech with a unusual impact was made by Tewksbury attorney Jay Gaffney, a decorated Vietnam veteran. At one point in his speech, Gaffney challenged the perception that minorities join the military for purely economic reasons, and that the are somehow less capable than other soldiers.

Black soldiers, Gaffney said, are just as brave, skillful and loyal as anyone, prompting one man in the all-white audience to shout "Here, here," and the audience answered with a round of applause.

Dan Sprague and Dan Morris of the Patriotic Activities Committee, tried by loudspeaker to exhort the audience into a chant of "U.S.A! U.S.A!" but their efforts barely succeeded. The mood Sunday was subdued, and those on hand seemed more concerned for the troops than in vocal patriotism. Still, the crowd did join in singing the national anthem and other classics.

One voice which stood out above the rest was that of Jennifer Martin, a student at Tewksbury Memorial High School. Watch for her in the future, as her voice is crystal clear and full of character.

At the end of the festivities, all the yellow ribbons brought to the town common were tied to the gazebo, where they remain today.

Mother's concern

Kay Donahue, clutching a photo of her son, USAF SSgt Richard Donahue, wore an expression that said it all, at Sunday's "Support the Troops" rally on the Tewksbury common. SSgt Donahue was sent to Saudi Arabia in the first week of the conflict.

Veteran player

DAV Past Commander George Maloof treated the crowd to some banjo playing, and singing, including one number named "My Buddy."

"Let's shoot pool"

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

"Male dominion" is not a phrase that can be used pool halls any more as increasing numbers of women are taking cue sticks in hand to put the nine ball in the corner pocket.

As a matter of fact when you talk to people like Gary and Ruth Lucchesi, owners of Boomers Billiards and Games in Wilmington they would prefer you call it a billiard parlor. But Gary admits "It will always be called a pool hall."

He went on to say that close to 50 percent of the tables being used at night have women as partners or playing amongst themselves.

In Woburn, Gene "Abe" Cerra an employee at the Silver Cue, one of the old style pool halls said "There is an increase in the number of women coming here because we keep the place decent."

He noted that the Tuesday night league at the Silver Cue has about eight to ten women playing in it.

Ruth was asked why she thought more women are playing pool now than when she was in High School.

She said that pool is a fun game. "You don't need brawn to play pool."

As to the old days Ruth said she would not have gone into the old style pool rooms. However, she added that she did like to play at the local YMCA (Young Men's Christian Association).

"Today my daughters play at the Boy's Club," she said.

According to Ruth, with the new style places which are clean and have stereo systems or, like Boomers, a coin operated CD (Compact Disc) player with four speakers, women are finding the billiard parlor a "nice place to meet guys."

Cerra does a good job of trying to keep the Silver Cue clean but, with the old style overhead lights and dark decor, the Silver Cue, on the second floor of a business block, is very reminiscent of the pool hall where Minnesota Fats might have been seen playing.

In fact one of their regular customers is much decorated pool champion Larry "Boston Shorty" Johnson.

Cleanliness is a fact of life at Boomers. The modern style, one story building has 3/4 length windows on three sides letting in plenty of light during the day.

Gary notes that ashtrays are placed every few feet and given out on request with every tray of balls so that players and spectators do not have an excuse to put cigarette butts out on the rug.

"The Silver Cue is the kind of image we wanted to stay away from," Gary said.

For their part Steve Sousa, who now owns the Silver Cue, is getting ready to spend some serious money in renovations on the business that has been closely associated with his family since 1968.

Cerra explained that 17 new tables are on order and will be installed within a month. At the same time new rugs have been ordered for the present bare wood floor.

He noted that other plans call for changes in the ceiling and the lighting.

Sousa explained that the work will be done in phases because of the expense involved.

The style of play at the two rooms is as different as their present atmospheres.

Gary explained that as part of his break from the old style pool room he went with an Olhausen table over the Brunswick brand. The reason for the choice is that the Olhausen is easier to play on.

"YOU DON'T NEED BRAUN TO PLAY POOL" so say the owners of Boomer's Billiards and Games of Wilmington. Always a game that men have loved, more women are playing pool today than ever before.

"Studies show that people come back to the places they play better," Gary said.

He explained that the Olhausen table has a little wider opening at the pockets and the banks are looser than those on the Brunswick.

Sousa is sticking with Brunswick and his new tables (new to him - they are 20-years old) will be the Old Crown model.

Cerra said they are described as "tight tables."

One area both places agree is that no drugs or alcohol is allowed, and the law states that no gambling will take place at the tables. However, the owners also agree that a friendly game might take place and for some reason money will exchange hands at the end of it.

Cerra said "There is no big heavy gambling here any more. There used to be among the old timers."

As Gary said "The days of card games and dice tables behind a screen in the back corner are gone."

Gone also is the image that the pool hall could break out in a fight any minute.

"We have been able to stay here in recent years because we've been able to control the violence," Cerra said.

Silver Cue customer Al Calixto said "The only drug in here is coffee."

He described the regulars as "all family."

Gone also are many of the old style pool rooms where those activities took place.

Bob Busa, a player at the Silver Cue said "The Viet Nam war killed the pool rooms."

Gary feels that movies such as "The Hustler" with Jackie Gleason portraying Minnesota Fats and Paul Newman portraying an up-and-coming pool shark might have scared a lot of people from pool rooms.

About the towns

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

READING - The MBTA is now charging $1 to park at its spiffy new 100-space non-resident lot north of Woburn St., at the Reading depot. Commuters must place $1 (bill or coins) in the slot number corresponding to their parking places, in the on-site, self-serve collection box. Those who fail to pay will have their license plate numbers taken down and will owe $1.50, to be paid on the spot.

Failure to pay may result in towing. If you have questions, call MBTA Customer and Community Relations at (617)722-5215.

"These are tough times," says one MBTA spokesperson, explaining the fee.

"This is one luxurious depot now," note several Reading residents.

WINCHESTER - The desire to understand and appreciate differences of all kinds by reaching out to a variety of people with similar interests and concerns has led to the formation of a multicultural interest group in Winchester.

According to spokesperson Sandy Thompson, multiculturalism involves much more than just studying other countries. The group has met in the Winchester Library meeting room - check with the library for more details.

STONEHAM - Although 30 percent fewer funds were available this year, the Stoneham Arts Council has received state approval through the Mass. Cultural Council for two Arts Lottery and eight PASS grants totaling $6,414.

The money includes funding to:

note that the number is growing.

"The billiard room business cleansed itself during 1980 and '81," Gary said.

He placed the blame for that on the skyrocketing property values making the expense of a pool room too costly.

According to Gary, the old style pool rooms were in places that property owners couldn't rent such as basements and second floors. Along came people that were willing to rent those places at higher rates and the pool rooms lost out.

He estimates that to open a pool room today the initial investment has to be $250,000.

Commenting on some communities that are making it tough for a billiard license to be issued, Gary said "It seems that the towns that are saying no are the towns that had a bad experience in the past. They are not looking at what is happening today."

As Gary explains it, what is happening today is a big business with national trade shows and industry magazines.

"This is a big industry. It wouldn't thrive if we were all opening sleazy pool halls."

He noted one very prominent pool and billiards tournament that

Jeanne Fiorenti for a full-sized quilt with lecture and demonstrations; the United Council Enrichment Committee for an in-school lecture series by author-illustrator Olivier Dunrea; the South School to attend North Shore Music Theater and Collins Center performances; St. Patrick's Elementary School to attend Puppet Showplace; Central School to the Collins Center; the Stoneham Summer Drama Workshop to the North Shore Music Theater; and Robin Hood School to North Shore Music Theater and University of Lowell.

SENIOR CENTER - The Wilmington Senior Center reminds you, via the Department of Elder Affairs, of the following guidelines for taking medication: be sure you have the right bottle - don't take medication in the dark; always follow directions - call your doctor with questions; throw out all out-of-date medications; ask your pharmacist to print large easy-to-read labels; some medicine cannot be mixed with any kind of alcohol - check with doctor; some medicine should be taken with food or liquids, before or after meals - be sure you get directions; never take a larger dose without doctor's permission; call doctor immediately if any new symptoms surface after beginning a new medicine; never share medicine; try to get all prescriptions from the same pharmacy.

Many doctors, hospitals or pharmacies will give you a calendar where you can list your daily medications.

Sousa remembers that the Silver Cue did not allow women back in the 1960s and "It was a lot rougher place."

Busa said "That's what is wrong. They portray it as rough."

By the same token, Gary feels that the recent movie "The Color of Money" has brought people back.

He looks at the history of the business as only a person can who has been in it for many years.

Gary's father started a pool hall in Holyoke called the Ivory Billiard Room which is still run by the family. The family members, along with Gary, are also the owners of Eastern Billiard Supply. That company designs and services pool rooms throughout New England.

Gary remembers when there used to be two or three pool rooms in every community. Now he can count only about 250 in New England.

However, he and Sousa both

ANTHONY MANCONI

Three missionaries appeared at the pearly gates but had to wait in a long line. Suddenly a taxi driver joined them. When the keeper of the keys saw him, he beckoned him to come to the head of the line. The missionaries couldn't understand this preferential treatment so one of them went up to the one in charge and said, "We are three men of the cloth. We have preached for many years, why does a mere taxi driver get in ahead of us?" The keeper of the keys smiled then said, "He is a Boston Taxi Driver and he has scared hell out of more people in one week than the three of you gentlemen have all your lives!"

Frank LeMoire said to the beautiful girl in the ice cream shop, "What flavors of ice cream do you have?" She answered in a hoarse whisper (apparently suffering from laryngitis), "Vanilla, Strawberry and Chocolate." Trying to be sympathetic, Frank asked, "Do you have laryngitis?" "Look, wise guy, I just told you, just Vanilla, Strawberry and Chocolate!"

My Aunt Nora had her picture taken at a studio by a professional photographer. When she saw the "proofs" she exclaimed, "Good grief, I came out awful. Why the last pictures you took of me I looked wonderful." The photographer smiled, then said diplomatically, "Nora, don't forget that when I took those pictures I was ten years younger!"

Two young boys walked into a dentist's office and the older one said, "I want a tooth 'tween' out. I don't want no gas, no novocaine, no nothing, just pull it!" "My oh-my," the dentist declared, "I've been in practice twenty years and I've never seen such courage even from adults. Tell me young man, which tooth is it?" He turned to his younger brother and said, "Okay Arnie, I'm in a hurry, so come over here and show the doctor your tooth!"

Personality Winners: Recca DeVito, Jeannie Fitzpatrick, Tammy Harding, Linda Heider, Patricia Keaney, June Lepke, Linda Pacios, Wanda Pero, Rhonda Ross, Robert Spencer and Barbara Sullivan, all of Woburn; Amy Guy,

Also, Fr. James F. Rafferty, Fr. James G. Burke, Janet Mackey Minister, Rev. Arline Sutherland, Tony Dalessio, Chad Garvey, Mike and his brother Steve Donnelly, Mike Damiani and Sean McGowan, all of Burlington; Manny Marshall, Will Lee, Scott Manahan, Chris Jervey, Kevin Eppig, Jonathan Racek, Zach Gaumer, Mike Shannon, Gabe Bradt, Bryan Sarti, and Jimmy and Donna Rogers, Former Celtics Coach, all of Winchester; Phyllis Colby of Carmine Mastrogianni and Edward Flaherty CPA office in Lynnfield, also Joe and Richie LeMoire, Police Chief Paul Romano, Marian Peabody, Lt. Steve Donegan, Fr. Gerry Gillespie of the Assumption Church and Officer David Donegan, all of Lynnfield; Town Manager Michael Cairra, Paul H. Sullivan, Arlene Surprenant, Kevin John Sowryda, Brian Murray, Beverly O'Connell, Woodchips is proud of Judy O'Connell all Scholastic, Pat D'Antonio, Gladys Sullivan and a Woodchips "Happy 54th Wedding Anniversary" to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Roth, all of Wilmington; Rev. Paul Millin, Shawn Lee, Greg Columbus, Joe Centrella, Maureen Sullivan, and Joseph and Patricia Foley, all of Tewksbury.

Folks, you would be surprised how much can be accomplished if no one cares who get the credit. I have in mind, Patricia Millward of Tewksbury who has organized many fund raisers for the Tewksbury Congregational Church. Pat teaches CPR and Winter survival to the Tewksbury Girl Scouts and she helps her husband Jimmy with benefits for the Shriner's Burns Hospital. This is perhaps the "first" public notice of her many charitable activities. God Bless you, Pat Millward. The world is divided indeed with people like Pat who do things, and people who get the credit.

A woman shopper in Cerretani's looked confused standing beside a pile of lemons. She asked my Aunt Nora who was buying oranges, "Lady, do you know anything about lemons?" Aunt Nora smiled and replied, "Look dearie, I'm an expert at picking lemons. I've been married three times!" I asked Fiore Ciarlone in the meat department, "Sir, do you have chicken legs?" With a sad face Fiore said, "No, I always walk this way."

Father John Crispo, Father Martin Ryan S.J. and Father Robert Doherty, all of St. Margaret's Church in Burlington, were going to a diocese meeting in Boston. They were a little late so Father John was putting the "pedal to the metal" and was promptly flagged down and stopped by Office Bob Giguere. "Okay, where's the Bingo game?" Office Giguere asked. "We are going on a sick call," Father John explained. "Look Father, don't give me that excuse. I'm a Boston College graduate and a 4th degree Knights of Columbus and I have never heard of 'three priests' going on a sick call." Fr. Crispo smiled and said, "Haven't you ever heard of a 'Solemn High Sick Call'?"

Kathy showed my Aunt Nora the bottle of perfume I gave her for Valentine's Day. My Aunt looked at it then shouted, "Perfume my eye. That idiot the Woodchipper gave me a bottle of that for my birthday last summer and I must confess it's the best mosquito repellent I've ever used."

I asked a farmer who was raising chickens, ducks, geese and other livestock, "Sir what's the difference between a goose and a gander?" He smiled and said, "I really don't know and I don't care because I let them find that out for themselves."

Boy, have I got a smart dog. I asked Rover, "What's on the top of this house?" Rover wagged his tail and barked out, "Ruff, Ruff!" Bobby Burns tells anyone who is stupid enough to listen to him, "Believe half of what you see on TV, half of what you hear on radio and nothing that you read in Woodchips!"

Super Star of the week is Ruth Haggerty, Woburn.

SHRINERS WIDOWS ORGANIZE FOR SUPPORT

Organizational meetings are now being held by the "Forget-Me-Nots," a new support group for widows of departed Shriners of the Aleppo Temple Shrine in Wilmington, according to Eugene A. Capobianco, the illustrious Potentate and leader of the approximately 13,000 members of the local fraternal organization, in eastern and central Massachusetts.

As the name implies, the "Forget-Me-Nots" will be composed of ladies who no longer have a direct male-tie to the organization, but desire to retain their own personal identity by becoming a vital and active functioning part of the new group.

The "Forget-Me-Nots" will bring together ladies with similar interests, concerns and insights, who will be invited, once again, to participate in the many and various Shrine functions particularly as they relate to the nationally well-known philanthropy, the Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children.

A coffee hour is scheduled to kick off the new groups activities, on February 27, at 10 a.m. at the Shriners Auditorium in Wilmington.

Additional information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Ruth Finnemore at (617) 665-6466 or (508) 657-4202.

Ellen M. Guthrie, M.D., has joined the practice of Drs. Bernard Logan and David Richman, and will begin seeing patients immediately. The daughter of Dr. Andrew Guthrie, Jr., a Medford pediatrician, she specializes in obstetrics and gynecology. Her grandfather, Dr. Andrew D. Guthrie, was a general practitioner who practiced in Medford until his retirement in 1978. Dr. Guthrie will be seeing patients at the practice offices at 92 High Street, Medford and 50 Tremont Street, Melrose as well as at the Physicians Office Center at Malden Hospital.

Ellen M. Guthrie

Dr. Guthrie received her medical degree from Tufts University School of Medicine. She was awarded a bachelor of science degree in biology from Georgetown University. After three years at Rochester General in Rochester, New York, Dr. Guthrie completed her residency at St. Margaret's, the Tufts-affiliated hospital in Boston.

Dr. Guthrie is a member of the American College of Obstetrics & Gynecologists and the Mass. Medical Society. A 1976 graduate of Winchester High School, she now lives in Medford with her husband, William, and their two month old daughter.

New framing service

Custom Creative Framing has been added to the list of services provided by Velmore Art Studios (the oldest established professional art instruction studio in the North Suburban area) 255 North Ave., Wakefield.

First established in 1967 Velmore Art Studios has instructed over 3,000 students (both children and adults) in the fine art of drawing and painting.

Velmore Art Studios owner Bill Velmore, a graduate of the Art Institute of Boston and winner of more than 60 art awards, just returned from and successfully completed a comprehensive course of advanced study in the art of custom picture framing at the prestigious New England Framing Academy in Keene, New Hampshire.

Included in the course were the most up-to-date conservation framing techniques, exposure to the newest top of the line framing equipment plus many new designs and styles of matting and framing.

Velmore Studios has offered ready made frames and limited custom framing for some time but are now able to meet the most exacting museum conservation requirements of this special creative service industry.

Velmore is also a member of the Professional Picture Framers of America. Helping customers meet the demands of individual taste and attention to detail are two benefits that have made customers choose Velmore Art Studios to frame their valuable works. Clients can choose from hundreds of hand made wood and metal mouldings plus a complete selection of mat styles. But best of all they can have a prize winning artist frame their prize winning works!

Royal Caribbean Classic Seniors Pro/Am Golf Tournament

Paul Hokanson, owner and general manager of Admiral Cruise Center, located at 125 Main St., Stoneham, was privileged to play in the Royal Caribbean Classic Seniors Pro/Am Golf Tournament at the Links at Key Biscayne, Miami, Florida, during the week of January 29 to February 3.

There were two rounds played; one on Wednesday and one Thursday. The first day, Hokanson's group played with Art Wall, one of the super seniors and the second day, they played with Mike Hill, the second leading money winner, just behind Lee Trevino, for 1990.

Although Hokanson's team did not win, they did come in as a team, 9 under par, of which Paul was able to contribute more than half of the birds for the team.

A great time was had by all with a "big draw" party on Monday, to determine which amateurs would play with which pros.

Tuesday, all the amateurs played a practice round at the Doral Country Club. That night, back at the Hyatt Hotel, Royal Caribbean held a sales-meeting dinner where Hokanson and his wife, Barbara, were privileged to sit at the table with the Tournament Director, Mike Solbler.

On Friday, the 1st of February, the guests were all invited to have lunch on board the Nordic Empress and had grandstand seats to watch the Seniors Championship Gold for Friday, Saturday and Sunday which was shown on ESPN-TV.

Gary Player was the winner of the tournament.

School notes

by phyllis nissen

—In conjunction with local businesses, Wilmington Superintendent of Schools William Fay has proposed public day care in Wilmington with the potential for profits surpassing $150,000 a year and the possibility of services available for approximately 80 children per day, as early as this spring and no later than September.

After six months of intensive work by Fay, other school officials and local businesspeople on legal and financial logistics, several Wilmington-based businesses have agreed to fund many start-up costs through monetary and equipment grants and credit-backing. In return, these businesses are guaranteed a certain number of spots for children of employees.

Operated by the public school system, the program will be run at the centrally located, currently unoccupied Swain School - lack of a rental fee or need for additional insurance coverage will be passed on to consumers in reasonable day care costs. The program will offer preschool day care 51 weeks a year from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. as well as bus service to and from school for kids in grades K through five. High school students may earn credits through their work in the program.

Local businesses participating in the program are: Analog Devices, Altron, Charles River Labs, Dynamic Research Corporation, Edwards High Vacuum, ICI Resins, Polymer Technology, Textron, Amatek, Agfa, Converse, and Baybanks.

—Winchester School Committee members are thinking of decentralizing special education classes by moving classes currently held at the Lynch School so that the intermediate special needs class is at Muraco, the K-1 readiness class at Ambrose and the learning behavior-SEEM class at Vinson Owen, with the early childhood preschool class remaining at Lynch.

Director of Special Education Frank Bianco is considering three factors in assessing the plan: accessibility for handicapped students, the continuance of mainstreaming and minimum transportation and class disruption.

—Stoneham's Central School students recently marveled at the theatrical techniques through which Poetry Alive!, a traveling poetry troupe, reached out to them.

Through traditional and contemporary selections, troupe members Kim and Bob Hefley performed "in the bardic tradition," awakening Central students to the joys of poetry.

Special thanks go to the United Council for their generous support, Central Principal John Grillo, reading specialist Patricia Comings, art specialist Carol Miller, and parent volunteer Diane Bennett.

—Reading High students Dana Bryant, Susan Coco and Kathleen Kieran have just been named finalists in the 1991 Merit Scholarship competition, among 14,000 students to be so honored. Next month, the National Merit Scholarship Corporation will announce the names of the 6,000 finalists who will receive scholarships.
